Parish Reflection — All Souls' Day

Today, we remember with tenderness all our loved ones who have gone before us marked with the sign of faith. The Church invites us not into sorrow without hope, but into love that continues, and trust in God's promise of eternal life.

All Souls' Day reminds us that grief is not a sign of weak faith — it is a sign of deep love. We do not stop missing those who shaped our lives. We still whisper their names in prayer, smile at cherished memories, and sometimes shed tears when their absence presses gently — or sharply — upon the heart.

But we do these things as a people of hope.

As St Paul assures us, "Our homeland is in heaven." In Christ, death is not the end; it is a doorway to life. We pray for the faithful departed not because they are forgotten, but because love remembers. Every candle we light, every name we speak, every Mass we offer becomes a bridge of grace, helping them along their journey to God's embrace.

Jesus meets us in our grief just as He met the widow at Nain — not with cold doctrine, but with a compassionate heart and the promise of resurrection. He sees our tears, and He whispers: "Do not be afraid. They are safe with Me."

Let us take comfort today in knowing that the bond of love we share with our departed does not break with death.

They live in Christ. They pray for us. And one day, by God's mercy, we shall be reunited in joy.

May the souls of all the faithful departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace. Amen.
